31         Pakora is a savory, deep-fried Indian snack made with 32         chunks of vegetables such as potato, cauliflower and 33         eggplant, or meat of choice, which is then dipped in 34         chickpea flour, seasoned with turmeric, salt, chili, or 35         other spices, and deep-fried in ghee.

46                 The name chaat encompasses a wide variety of Indian 47                 street foods, snacks, or small meals which usually 48                 combine salty, spicy, sweet, and sour flavors. They are 49                 usually small, consumed on their own as a snack, or 50                 combined with other dishes to form a big meal.

57          58             Paratha is a flaky, layered, golden-brown Indian bread, which is typically consumed for breakfast. It consists of whole wheat flour that's baked in ghee, Indian clarified butter, and comes in round, triangular, square, or hexagonal shapes.
